Yoram Nelken Founder and Chairman

Yoram Nelken founded Banter in 1997 to help companies deal effectively with the explosion of online, informal written communication. His unique vision resulted in award-winning CRM and contact center solutions that automate processes to improve productivity, cut costs, empower customers and achieve optimum ROI across multiple channels. Today Banter's products are successfully delivering dramatic and measurable efficiencies in some of the most demanding call centers, including Wells Fargo, Royal Bank of Canada and many more.

Mr. Nelken has two decades of experience in research and development, business development and executive management. Prior to founding Banter, Mr. Nelken directed engineering for Octel Communications where he pioneered the evolution of IVR development tools used for integrated e-commerce applications. Prior to that he led the development efforts of complex, dynamic and intelligent automation systems, including the adaptive handling of imperfect natural language and feedback-based industrial automation systems.

Mr. Nelken holds a double degree in Computer Science and Business Administration from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Abstract

This work presents a biologically motivated neuronal model for detecting the elevation of unfamiliar natural sound sources using monoaural cues, based on head-related-transfer functions. This model can determine the elevation of an unfamiliar sound source to within less than 4° with no error using very small number of training samples. In addition, we suggest that the approximate logarithmic response of the cells in the cochlea is beneficial for localizing unfamiliar sound sources.

This paper presents an analysis of temporal anaphora in sentences which contain quantification over events, within the framework of Discourse Representation Theory. The analysis in (Partee, 1984) of quantified sentences, introduced by a temporal connective, gives the wrong truth-conditions when the temporal connective in the subordinate clause is before or after. This problem has been previously analyzed in (de Swart, 1991) as an instance of the proportion problem, and given ...
